Earl Derby on the Irish Church Question-Earl Russell in Defence of the Gindstone Recolutions—His Fear of a Collision Between the Crown and Commons—Mr. Disraeli's

In the House of Lords to-night Lord Derby made a Speech in which he attacked the resolves of Mr. ne on the Irish Church, and accused Lofd Russell of vacellation of opinion on the question. He said that the resolves, adopted by only one of the Houses of Parliament, were without binding force on the crown, but if a bill was duly ed it would then be obligatory. He criticised Earl Russell's altered views on the subject and hoped that by the defeat of this scheme Ireland

Lord Russell followed. He said he was amazed to see Lord Derby opening that subject here while it was yet pending in the Lower House. He declared with much earnestness that the peace of Ireland was he aim of his life. He defended his course on the round that inconsistency in means was not incom-patible with consistency in the end sought to be atined. He acknowledged that he preferred his own t he accepted the plan of Mr. Gladstone the most practicable under the circumstruces as the most practicable under the calculation of the resolves pass the House he should submit an appropriate bill, which he believed would be sus ained by the House of Commons and by the public ppinion of the country, and would without doubt command the assent of the House of Lords, He expressed the hope that the Ministry would not attempt to influence the crown adversely to the will of the House of Commons, as a collision etween the Crown and the House of Commons would be most deplorable.

In the House of Commons Mr. Disraell, in answering a question from the opposition benches, said the Ministry wished for the fullest discussion of the Irish Church question.

Politics Dull-Fenian Treason Felony Trials The Claim of a Mixed Jury and Ruling of

LONDON, April 28-Evening. The political news to-day is without importance. The trial of the Fenians, Burke, Casey and Shaw, commenced this morning in the Court of Queen's Bench, Judge Bramwell presiding.

The court room was crowded with spectators.

Great interest is taken in the trial, which is conidered to excel in importance that of the Clerken-well prisoners. The Attorney General and Solicitor ral, who conducted the case for the Crown in the previous trial, also managed the prosecution in this case, Messrs. Ernest Jones and McDonald appeared as counsel for Burke, Mr. Lewis foe Casey and Mr. Pater for Shaw.

At the boginning of the proceedings Mr. Jones moved that a mixed jury of Englishmen and half of foreigners be empanelled to try Burke, on the ground that his client was an allen. 'The counsel for the Crown objected.

Mr. Jones offered as proof of the defendants' nation passport signed by the United States Minister, Mr. Adams. The validity of this proof was argued The court finally ruled out the paper as inadmissi bie, and the motion for a mixed jury was accordingly The counsel for the Crown defined the offence with which the defendants stood charged as felony as laid down in the act of 1848, the defendants having made war against the Queen. The penalty, according to that law, is transportation and penal servitude for from two to seven years.

The counsel for the Crown said they should rest their case principally on the testimony which would be given by the witnesses Corydon, Delany and

Corydon was then sworn, and testified as follows:-Knew the prisoner, Burke, in the United States; Burke was sent out from America to buy arms in England for the rising in Ireland; afterwards saw Burke and Shaw in Liverpool; met them at Fenian meetings; was with them when the attack on Chester Castle was planned; when the insurrection broke out in Ireland the principal English cities were to be fired and des Mile. De Rosa, the first danseuse in Ekrope, makes her debut in this theatre next week. Miss Lucy Egerton makes a charming prince, and the rising bath at the end of the second act is one of the most beautiful effects ever produced on our stage.

Paris and Helen, nightly confor giving the slip to poor doting Menelans; and the inimitable Leffingwell, with eccentricity upon ecceninimitable Leffingwell, with eccentricity upon eccentricity, follows in his admirable impersonation of Mr. Romeo Jaffer Jenkins, in the screaming comedicta, of "Too Much for Good Nature." The Worrell sisters shine pre-eminently in buriesque, and in their peculiar line have very few equals upon the stage. In the classic story of the Grecian elopement as now served up at the New York theatre, they are fairly distancing themselves and are nightly adding new laurels to their fame. Last evening the vivacious acting and singing of the three sisters created quite a furore, and each of them received a well deserved encore in their several parts. While Miss Sophie Worrell was singing the solo in the beginning of the third act she was suddenly overcome with weakness and fainted away. She was borne from the stage amid a dead silence; but the play proceeded without further interruption, and upon her re-appearance she was halled with a perfect storm of applause, which was continued to such a length that she had to bow her acknowledgments several times.

The piece was well out upon the stage, and the fair lessee as Zoe aroused put upon the stage, and the fair lessee as Zoe aroused to a degree the old enthusiasm in the rendition of that character which the habitués of this cosey little theatre will recollect was awakened at previous representations of the same drama. The support which the lady received, however, was, with one or two exceptions, but mediocre, not to use a stronger term, the burden of the play being imposed upon her, which she creditably sustained. George Wren as Pete, the venerable slave, Miss Fanny Queen as Paul and Mrs. Howard as Mrs. Peyton deserve the recognition referred to.

Present appearances, as indicated in the immense crowds that still nightly are gathered in this most popular temple of Ethiopian minstreisy to witness this pleasing burlesque show that it has just fairly entered on its prolongued career of brilliant success. Each night only adds to its popularity; and it is not to be wondered at; the piece is full of broad humor, its sarcastic hits are so sharp and pointed, and the delineation of the various characters so strikingly original and perfect in every detail. But aside from this great drawing feature there are other strongly attractive features in the continuous change of the preliminary programme, which always presents a splendid combination of the finest singing, good music, racy and original jokes and the best of dancing. A new tenor of transatlantic reputation has just been added to the company, as also a harp player of great skill. Novelties, however, are an unfailing characteristic of the place, with Leon as the great exponent of all that makes burlesque so attractive.

Variety seems to be their great specialty, and while throughout the entire of their pleasing entertain throughout the entire of their pleasing entertainment the most versatile humor is displayed, they do not fail to exercise a very judicious discrimination in the selection of the numerous items presented. Last evening, as indeed on every previous one, the coinfortable little theatre was densely crowded by an appreciative audience who repeatedly manifested their approbation. Every member of the well regulated troupe is an artist in his own particular line of business, whether referring to the instrumental, vocal or comic departments, and where there is such an excellent combination the result of their united efforts must at once prove interesting and attractive. In the more humorous sketches the audience appeared quite delighted by the many clever delineations. THE PANORAMA OF THE WAR.—This exhibition at Madison Square Hall may be regarded as a pictorial presented to the public. It is not surprising, therefore, that it attracts a large attendance every night. As a work of art it is highly meritorious; as a volume of instruction, tending towards an intelligent comprehension of scenes and deeds with which we are all made familiar by reading or by hearrasy, its value can only be appreciated by those who have seen it. There are no leading features in the great war omitted from the canvas that could

THE YACHTING CONGRESS.

MR. EDITOR OF BELL'S LIPE:—When is this Yachting Congress to come off? Unless it is set on foot, and their set of rules promulgated at once, all benefit arising from it will be lost to the yacht clubs of Great Britain for this season. To be of any use their code ought to be discussed and circulated this month, and tous allow the yacht clubs to adopt them if they think fit at their general meetings, which usually come off early in May. If the meeting is put off to give the members of the congress an opportunity of killing two birds with one stone, to see the Derby and attend the congress during same week, the yachting interest will suffer, which I think would be a pity. The figure officers can surely attend ruces, &c., at their own time; but I think the congress is of too great importance to be postponed for such minor considerations. Yours, &c.,

Proposed Meeting of the National Democratic Convention in June.

Rumors of Another Coup d'Etat of the President.

WASHINGTON, April 28, 1868. Movement to Call the Democratic National Convention Early in June.

The Congressional Democratic Executive Commit-tee have unanimously passed resolutions requesting the Democratic National Committee to reconsider their previous action and issue a call for the Presi-dential Nominating Convention to meet in New York early in June, instead of on the 4th of July, as now arranged for. It is probable that a Congres caucus of all the democratic members will shortly be called for the purpose of making the same request. The feeling appears to be unanimous that the day of meeting now fixed is too distant, and that the political necessities and welfare of the party require an earlier period for the declaration of principles and nomina tion of candidates. Current Rumors at the Capital-Indications of Important Movements on the Part of the

Rumors are again working their way into the gossip of the day bearing a significance of approach-ing new developments at the White House. As it was just previous to the Presidential coup d'état nding Mr. Stanton and designating General Grant to run the War Department ad interim, and again when Mr. Stanton was removed and General Thomas detailed on War Department duty, an impending stroke of policy from the chief Executive is now premonished by the batch of rumors circulating in public and private circles. Some of these reports have reference to the nomination of Major Genera schofield to relieve Mr. Stanton of the onerous duties which he feels it incumbent upon himself to endure, pro bono publico, and which he publicly announces ne is extremely desirous of turning over to any indi vidual who may square exactly with his ideas of an able and loyal war minister.

Other and more recent rumors are in relation to the service which the President has marked out for Major General Rousseau. The presence of this officer in Washington at this time, and his frequent interviews at the Executive Mansion, together with several other significant circumstances attending his trip hither, have conspired to arouse a feeling of distrust among the watchful radicals and to awaken a more than ordinary interest with all. One story has it that General Rousseau is going to relieve General Buchanan of the command of the Fifth Military district, as General McDowell is intended for another field of duty. This solution, however, is not accepted by the radicals as sufficient to account for the grave and protracted interviews that are now going on between the President and General

Another whisper that has been passing around to-day, that the headquarters of the Fifth United States cavalry and the company of that regiment on duty here are soon to be changed to another post of duty, seems to meet with a larger share of eredence among them. This change would render it necessary for the people of Wash ington to forego the services of General Emory, Colonel of the Fifth cavalry, who now commands the department of Washington, and it is hinted that this post is probably the one intended for

Veto of the Bills to Authorize the 125th Street Railroad and the Increase of Sher-iff's Fees-Defeat of the Charity Bill-Rejection of the Sixth Avenue Railroad Bills. ALBANY. April 28, 1868. _

Governor Fenton has made hundreds of friends for himself by his action on this scandalous measure, which proposed to permit an interchange of all the which proposed to permit an interchange of all the unsightly freight, cattle and oil cars of the Hudson River and Hariem Railroad across the central avenue of the future Beigravia of New York.

The Governor has also vetoed the bill to permit an increase of the fees of the Sheriff of the city and county of New York—a measure which would have added something like one hundred thousand dollars per annum to the perquisites of that already lucrative office. The document is also given below.

The Assembly Committee on Cities is zealously at work on the tax levy. A new policy has been suddenly adopted and many items have been stricken out, largely reducing the amount at first appropriated. The mutilation is still going on, but we shall have the amended bill in full in a few days.

The Charity bill, which donates money to numerous religious and private charitable institutions, was déreated to-day through failure to receive the requisite two-thirds vote. It may be reconsidered, however, and passed. It was beaten by the refusal of many of the republicans to vote for it on the ground that alwest all. The institutions to which the young

The Senate committee has reported adversely on the bill to authorize the appointment of an additional Fire Commissioner and the increase of salaries of the department. The motion to agree (and thereby kill the bill) was laid on the table at the instance of senator Creamer. Its eventual defeat is very probable, however. The Railroad Committee also reported adversely on the proposition for a railroad between Tenth and Cortlandt street ferries, and the bill was rejected.

The latter committee, with an inexplicable sagacity, reported adversely on the bills to reduce the fare on the Sixth Avenue Railroad to five cents and to compel the company to run through cars to Fifty-ninth street. Those who live in the section near the line of this road just south of the Park are aware of the annoyance which the company create by requiring a change of cars at the Forty-third street depot in the depot at night. The bill referred to proposed to remedy this evil, but the Railroad Committee, entertaining wiser views of the subject, reported adversely. The report was agreed to and the bill rejected.

Senator Norton endeavored to stay the vote to agree with the report, but he was unable to present opposition enough.

The quarrel about the commissioners for the new Capitol has had one good result—in the selection of Mr. James Terwilliger, clerk of the Senate, whose long experience in the Capitol will make him an invaluable adviser in perfecting the details of an appropriate, commodious and comfortable building such as the new structure should be.

The Arcade Railroad Bill in the Senate-Senatorial Caucuses, ALBANY, April 28, 1868.

The Arcade Railroad bill was ordered to a third eading in the Senate to night by a vote of 18 to 11. At a caucus of the republican Sewators to-night an attempt was made to obtain unanimous action on the Governor's appointments to-morrow; but Messrs. Folger, Crowley, Hale and Stanford, the anti-Fen-tonites, boiled. The democrats in caucus decided to continue their refusal to confirm.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE PENSION FUND.

The bill in reference to the pension fund of the Metropolitan Police was announced from the Assembly amended by increasing the salaries of the captains to $2,560 and of doormen to $1,000. Such amendments did not properly belong in this bill, and the President and Superintendent had said they would rather see this charitable bill killed than have it burdened with these provisions.

A motion was made to non-concur in the Assembly amendment, which was carried, and Messra. Crowley, Hall and Genet were appointed a committee of conference.

THE SING SING PRINTING CONTRACT.

The Senate in Committee of the Whole took up the bill abolishing the Sing Sing printing contract and providing that at the expiration of five years all convicts at Auburn shall be employed exclusively upon chairmaking.

providing that at the expiration of five, years all convicts at Auburn shall be employed exclusively upon chairmaking.

Mr. Thayen moved to strike out the clause relating to chairmaking. Carried by 11 to 9.

Mr. Folger moved to strike out the $550,000 appropriation, because the means for supporting the prisoners are already provided for.

Mr. Hale opposed the motion, saying that the object of that appropriation was to provide means for the State to abandon the present contract system and enter upon the management of convict labor through her own officers. All the machinery at the prisons now is owned by the contractors. The State will have to purchase it or furnish other, and will eventually compensare herself by returning all the earnings of convicts, estimated at $2$ per day per man. Instead of fifty or sixty cents a day, which is all they receive from the contractors.

The motion to strike out prevailed.

Mr. Hale said that by the adoption of this amendment the bill was of no utility, except so far as abolishing the printing contract was concerned. He therefore moved to strike out all the sections save those referring to that contract. Carried by 17 to 9.

Mr. MURPHY said he was in favor of the bill before the amendment was adopted. He regarded it now of no utility except that it abolished the printing contract. The mechanics of the State had asked for bread, and the Senate gives them a stone. He voted in the affirmative.
